2000 Series Companionway Door

The new 2000 series companionway sliding door incorporates features not previously available in a bent companionway door.

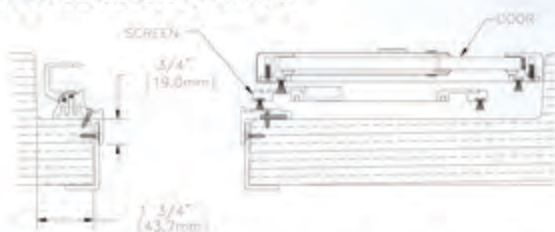

These include an optional integral sliding screen, narrow frame and base to optimize width of the passageway and the clear viewing area, and an ultra smooth Delrin sliding system.

Of particular interest to boat builders is the ability to install the fully assembled door onto a flat cutout (not recessed). This eliminates complex tooling in the deck, and allows the use of trim pieces to dress out the interior.

These systems feature marine grade lock sets and marine grade polyester powder coating.

Custom colors are available.
